TELEVISION TYLER PERRY DRAMA CONCLUDES IN MAY D2

New film explores how FBI tracked Martin Luther King Jr. for years.

By Rodney Ho rodney.ho@ajc.com

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., for a period of 13 years, was one of the most scrutinized and filmed figures in American history, from the Montgomery bus boycott in 1955 to his assassination in Memphis in 1968.

But it wasn't just the press watching him. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, which J. Edgar Hoover led, took a keen interest in King as he became the de facto leader of the civil rights movement. As King became ever bigger, Hoover's obsession grew as well.

As documented in a new film, "MLK/FBI," out Jan. 15 in theaters and on video on demand, Hoover expended untold amounts of money and manpower tapping King's phones, using long-term spies to track his whereabouts and creating a monstrous dossier of King's philandering exploits and strategy sessions.

The film, based in part on a book written by David Garrow, uses newly declassified FBI files to illustrate the depths of the government's surveillance and harassment of King in the 1960s. The documentarians even revealed a letter the FBI wrote King telling him to kill himself, accompanied by incriminating evidence of his interactions with mistresses. The FBI surveilled everybody at the time," said Ben Hedin, producer of "MLK/FBI" who previously released a Grammy-nominated documentary in 2016 called

Two Trains Runnin'" about the hunt for two blues singers in Mississippi during the height of the civil rights movement. "But what they did to King was more than that. It was active blackmail and character assassination they didn't do with Malcolm X and other civil rights leaders.'

When people at the Toronto Film Festival saw the film in the fall, Hedin said many didn't realize how reviled King was in the 1960s, that he was not the man people universally laud today on both sides of the political aisle. Hoover, the film noted, was more popular than King at the time, his unease matching those of many white Americans at the time about King and the changes he wrought.

King, despite his non-violent stance, became a symbol of white people's insecurities at the time. We also wanted to tell the larger

Bistro dynamic addition to scene

The Chastain offers baked goods by day, fine dining by night.

By Ligaya Figueras

Ligaya.Figueras@ajc.com

"Everything is interconnected," said Christopher Grossman, executive chef and operating partner at the Chastain, a new daytime cafe and evening bistro that overlooks its namesake Chastain Park in Buckhead.

Grossman was referring to the spaces that seamlessly make up the renovated property (former home to Horseradish Grill), lending it what Grossman called a "park-like, community feel." There's the main building, with both bar and dining room surrounded by woods and streaming with natural light. An expansive patio features a tented, heated dining section, plus a fire pit and a cluster of socially distanced tables and chairs opposite a long wooden bench. And, there's the vegetable garden, tops on Grossman's list for what he called his "dream restaurant."

But, the interconnectedness at the Chastain is more than the space. It's Grossman's vision of a new American menu that invites mixing, matching and sharing - or sometimes fighting over – elevated comfort food in the form of rabbit gnocchi; or succulent roasted chicken with a warm chanterelle salad and a bonus chicken pot pie, capped with a hot biscuit; or a plate of crispy okra tempura with a boiled peanut remoulade. (The latter dish recently was removed from the menu; fingers crossed it comes back.)

It's also a menu that shows evidence of Grossman's time at premier dining establishments - six years under veteran Gerry Klaskala at Aria, time at Thomas Keller's French Laundry and a five-year run as executive chef at Atlas at the St. Regis Hotel.

AT&T makes changes to TV streaming plans

Clark Howard Only in The AJC

Editor's note: This article was written by Michael Timmermann and originally appeared on Clark.

AT&T TV Now's live TV streaming plans are no longer available to new subscribers.

According to its website, AT&T TV Now has merged with the company's separate service called AT&T TV. Existing AT&T TV Now customers can continue to access the service.

AT&T TV Now launched in 2016 as DirecTV Now. It underwent a series of changes and price hikes over the years.

With AT&T TV Now being shut down to new subscribers, AT&T is now advertising AT&T TV plans with no contract, equipment or hidden fees.

That's a change from when AT&T TV first launched.

The cheapest plan offers 65-plus channels for $69.99 per month. That's higher than the starting price for YouTube TV, Hulu Live and fuboTV.

AT&T TV's more expensive plans include additional channels, regional sports networks and a year of HBO Max. You can take a closer look at the packages and the channel lineups on AT&T TV's website.

Roots of Capitol attack long in the making

Gracie Bonds Staples Only in The AJC

It's taken me a while to process the attempted coup that occurred last week at our nation's Capitol.

Not because I didn't see it coming but because so many others apparently didn't. They said they were surprised, that they didn't think the president intended to incite a riot.

Surprised? For four years, President Donald Trump and many of his supporters have been showing us who they are.

The violence in the Capitol only surprised those of us with the naivete of white priv-

OWN wrapping 'Haves' drama after 8 seasons

By Rodney Ho

rodney.ho@ajc.com

An eight-year relationship with Oprah Winfrey's OWN network is coming to an end for Tyler Perry with the eighth and final season of the popular drama "The Haves and the Have Nots.'

The soap, which focused on the battles between two wealthy Savannah families, will end in May and conclude with 196 episodes over eight years since its debut in 2013 as OWN's first new scripted

It became Perry's biggest series on OWN, which included other shows over the years such as "If Loving You

Is Wrong," "Love Thy Neighbor" and "The Paynes." Perry's shows helped bolster Winfrey's network, which later embarked on other scripted shows such as "Queen Sugar" and "Greenleaf."

"The Haves and the Have Nots" regularly drew nearly 3 million viewers per episode and was consistently among one of the top-rated scripted cable series for African-American women.

The final eight episodes, according to a press release, is being described as a "trueto-life Greek tragedy as Jim Cryer (John Schneider), and his rich friends find out what happens when personal flaws go unchecked. Karma has not been kind to the elite one percenters."

Winfrey, in the same release, thanks Perry, "the incredible cast, the tireless crew and every single viewer who watched with bated breath each week and tweeted along with us these past eight years. I will be watching alongside you all during this final

In 2017, Perry signed a new multi-year deal with Viacom, which owns BET, MTV, Nickelodeon and other cable networks as well as the streaming service BET+. He has since created several series for those networks including "Ruthless," "Sistas," "The Oval" and "Young Dylan."

These houseplants can tolerate low light

Walter Reeves

Q: What are some houseplants that can live in low light? My apartment has few windows. Isabella Cantor, Decatur

A: I'll give you six, with the Latin name included, to be sure you get the exact plants you want. My list would include ZZ Plant (Zamioculcas zamiifolia), Snake Plant/ Mother-in-Law's Tongue (Sansevieria trifasciata), Parlor Palm (Chamaedorea elegans), Cast Iron Plant (Aspidistra elatior), Golden Pothos Vine/Devil's Ivy (Epipremnum pinnatum) and Heart-Leaved Philodendron (Philodendron scandens). Here are some tips for success: Water only when the soil surface feels dry and do not fertilize until spring. Turn the plant 180 degrees every month to give light to all the leaves. If possible, put the plants outdoors in the shade from May through September. This will help them recharge for the winter months spent indoors.

Q: Someone (who shall remain nameless, though we share a bed) trimmed our cryptomeria tree 3 feet up the trunk. Will branches fill back in where this was trimmed? Cindy D., email

A: I'm sad to say, for you and your unnamed friend, the branches will not grow back. It is simply too shady along the trunk for new buds to sprout. Consider hiding the base of the tree with small evergreens like Indian hawthorne, autumn fern, or loropetalum.

Pothos vine tolerates low light and is a common inhabitant of office desks. WALTER REEVES FOR THE ATLANTA JOURNAL-CONSTITUTION

Q: I have been experimenting with cutting small pieces of store-bought mushrooms and throwing the mix on trees and on the ground to grow more. I noticed mushrooms growing from the trunk of an old Rose-of-Sharon. Are they the same as the ones I distributed? Ana Yim, email

A: I am not confident in my mushroom identification skills, but you can join the Mushroom Hunters of North Georgia Facebook group and get all sorts of help. The Georgia Mushroom Club, gamushroomclub.org, has regular online meetings. I find both groups to be friendly and enthusiastic. I have some great links to other mushroom identification resources at bit.ly/ GAmushroomid.

Q: I need a fast-growing vine to plant beside my deck to screen us from the house next door. It gets a few hours of direct sun during the day. David Cohen, Sandy Springs

A: I can think of three to consider: evergreen clematis (Clematis armandii), Carolina jessamine (Gelsemium sempervirens) and Confederate jasmine (Trachelospermum jasminoides).

If you loosen the soil in a wide area around the planting hole, all three will grow like a house afire in a couple of years.

As an added bonus, they all have attractive fragrant flowers in spring.

The interconnectedness also includes the integral role that pastry chef Christian Castillo and his team play in the restaurant's operation, as they whip up muffins, croissants and cinnamon rolls for the daytime counter-service cafe, plus breads and creative desserts (that's no ordinary dark chocolate mousse) for the evening crowd. Since the Chastain's debut in November, Grossman has been thrilled with the in-house bread and pastry program. "It's surpassed all my expectations," he said. "The reason is Christian.'

The Chastain has served to reunite the two chefs, who worked together at Atlas before Grossman left in the fall of 2019 to dedicate himself full-time to bringing the Chastain to fruition. The Chastain's executive sous chef, Jessica Mullice, is another familiar face. Like Castillo, she also had a stint at Atlas. Most recently, Mullice worked at the Modern, inside the Museum of Modern Art in New York, but returned to Atlanta when the pandemic forced restaurants in the Big Apple to close, and the job market evaporated.

While the natureenclosed space, refined comfort food and deep talent pool are important reasons for the Chastain's

Menu: new American bistro

Alcohol: full-service bar for dine-in only What I ordered: French onion soup, apple and Brussels sprouts salad, rabbit gnocchi, cornmeal tempura okra, crown roast chicken breast with mushroom salad and chicken pot pie, pecan pie, dark chocolate mousse. Every dish brought gratifying bites. The only disappointment is that the okra is now off the menu. Service options: cafe, walk-up, with online ordering coming soon; dinner, dine-in (reservations strongly encouraged), takeout (in-person orders preferred), no delivery Outdoor dining: yes

Mask policy: required for all employees, and for customers when not seated early success – as noted by its popularity, especially among the weekend crowd – the high demand for on-premises dining (at 50% reduced capacity, due to COVID-19) has slowed the rollout of the restaurant's takeout pro-

Online ordering for the daytime cafe will launch by late January, but the rollout date for online dinner orders is still to be determined. Meanwhile, the restaurant primarily handles carryout orders placed in-person, and juggles to accommodate phone orders.

The Friday night I picked up my order, it was evident that they were working out the kinks in the takeout process. The food, however, needed no correcting. It was carefully packaged - down to the quenelle of vanilla bean ice cream that was double-wrapped in plastic over ice, waiting to be set atop a slice of dense pecan pie and the compositions were so beautiful that I transferred the lot to fine china.

I haven't eaten at a restaurant in 11 months. That well-executed takeout meal from the Chastain offered comfort and consolation – and hope that, one day soon, I can take a seat inside, to fully experience this dynamic addition to Atlanta's restaurant scene.
